BIG MASONIC FIELD DAY FOR CITY

Merchant Association Backs Request to Close Up Brand for Parade

The annual field day of the Masonic Commanderies of Southern California, embracing the entire territory from Santa Barbara to the southern line of the state, will be held in Glendale on October 25, according to an announcement made today by Clem Moore, past commander of Glendale Commandery of the Knights Templar, No. 53.

Mr. Moore appeared before the Glendale Merchants' association at its weekly meeting in the Alley Inn today and asked support in his request that the plans to present to the City Council and Chief of Police John D. Fraser, asking permission to shut all automobile traffic off Brand boulevard, between California avenue and Colorado street, in order that the Knights Templar may parade in massed formation along Brand boulevard as a part of the ceremonies that are scheduled for that day.

Promises Support
A. T. Cowan, publisher of The Glendale Evening News, moved that the association endorse the suggestion made by Mr. Moore and the support of the Glendale Merchants' association will be given the resolution when it is presented to the city officials.

The decision to hold the field day of the Masonic Commanderies in Glendale was made at the annual convention held earlier in the year at Pasadena, and Mr. Moore and the other officers of the local Commandery are now in communication with the other bodies in Southern California, in order to secure definite data as to the number of those who will attend.

Immediately following the stated meeting of the Glendale Commandery on Monday, September 1, the announcements of the official program for the parade and the other ceremonies will be made.

Parade Formation
When the parade is formed it will be led by the massed bands of all the participating organizations, followed by the United States flag and the colors of the different Commanderies, and following these will be the grand officers, the past and present commanders, the other officers of the Commanderies, the Captains general, and the rank and file, in ranks that will extend from curb to curb.

Immediately after the parade the drill teams of the different Commanderies will compete on the grounds of the Harvard Street High school, adjoining the Masonic temple on South Brand boulevard.

BODY UNIDENTIFIED

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 11.—Police here today were attempting to identify the body of a middle-aged man washed ashore and found on the beach. No labels were found on the man's clothes and the pockets were empty.

Dakota Candidate For Governor Is Gored to Death

VERMILION, S. D., Aug. 11.—A. S. Anderson, 51 years old, Democratic candidate for governor of South Dakota, was gored to death on his farm near here early today.

Anderson, who was a "dirt farmer" candidate, had gone to the pasture to bring home the cows about 7 o'clock this morning, a usual chore with the prominent South Dakota politician.

When he was an hour overdue, his hired man on his farm investigated. He found the mangled body of his employer in the pasture.

George H. Ashbaugh Wins First Prize In Evening News 'Safety Contest'

George H. Ashbaugh, rural route No. 2, Box 967, was today declared the winner of The Glendale Evening News' Safety Week letter contest, by the three judges, M. Walters, Cameron D. Thom and Henry Kuhn, all members of the Citizens' Traffic commission, after they had carefully read and checked the many letters received by the Safety Week Editor of The Glendale Evening News.

The writer of the prize-winning letter sets forth some facts regarding safety that are indisputable, the judges declared, and gives suggestions that will tend to cut down automobile accidents if faithfully carried out.

Prize-Winning Letter
The first prize of $10 goes to the writer of the letter published below. The contest opened August 4 and closed at midnight August 9. The only rules regarding the contests were that the letters must be limited to 200 words and must set forth rules and regulations, or suggestions that will, when followed, make for more careful driving and general safety, both as to occupants of automobiles and pedestrians.

Second Prize Winner
The second prize of $5 was awarded by the judges to Joe V. Griffin, a fireman, attached to the Central station at 311 East Broadway. Mr. Griffin's letter ran a close second for honors and it was only after considerable deliberation by the judges that the first prize was awarded to Mr. Ashbaugh.

If the writers of the prize winning letters will call at the office of A. T. Cowan, publisher of The Glendale Evening News, the prizes will be given to them.

The second prize letter will appear in the columns of The Glendale Evening News tomorrow.

The letter chosen by the three judges as the best among the many received by the Safety Week editor of The Glendale Evening News, follows:

Editor The Evening News: I am sending a few suggestions which I have found beneficial in my driving. They may be a help to others. The interest your paper is taking in the motoring public is very commendable.

Yours truly,
GEO. H. ASHBAUGH.
R. 2, Box 967, Glendale, Calif.

Suggestions For Safety
Let the driver of every automobile consider that the operation of a car is a sacred trust.

Not only is there involved many hundreds of dollars of property value, but human life also depends upon his prudence and carefulness.

1 Every driver should know that the car he is driving has good brakes.

2 Form the habit of giving signals clear cut and positive. What is worth doing is worth doing right.

3 Never dispute the right of way. It is better to let an ignorant driver or a "road hog" have what is rightly yours than to stand up for your rights and be wrecked.

4 Do not place any stock in what the other fellow SHOULD DO. LOOK OUT for him! He may signal one thing and do the direct opposite.

5 Christian courtesy will go far in promoting safety on the highways. A few moments' time spent waiting for an opening at a crossing is time well spent.

6 Do not take a chance. Spend more time in trying to interpret the other fellow than you do deciding whether this or that is rightfully yours.

7 When behind the wheel of an automobile give yourself wholly to driving. "Eternal vigilance is the price of safety."

PARTY UNITY DEMOCRAT SLOGAN

Candidate Davis Starts on Campaign; Three Big Issues In Fight

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service.
CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 11.—Assuming direct command of the Democratic ship of state, John W. Davis today formally launched his drive for the White House.

The Democratic nominee took up the party leadership by calling the national committee into session for battle instructions, the election of campaign officials and to hear a stirring appeal for party unity. The candidate called the meeting and announced he would personally address it.

Ceremony Tonight
This action came as a prelude to the formal notification ceremony tonight. The committee on notification, headed by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, will inform Davis officially that the New York convention chose him to carry the party standard in the coming campaign.

As though unaware of the honor, Davis will thank the committee and then formally accept. In his speech of acceptance, the nominee will lay down his own interpretation of the Democratic platform adopted at New York, stress the issues upon which he will wage his campaign and throw down a number of challenges to his political opponents.

Preparation of the speech was concluded several days ago and party leaders were enthusiastic over its potential effect upon the voting public.

Davis has already announced he would stress three great issues in the campaign. These are honesty in government, federal economy and religious freedom.

Everybody In Campaign of Education to Reduce Motor Accidents

Educate Children In Motor Rules!

M. F. Brown, manager in charge of the Los Angeles office of the Division of Motor Vehicles of the state of California, today advocated the education of pedestrians from childhood to observe motor vehicle movement in order to stop the growing number of accidents. He also favors the prohibition of left hand turns on all principal boulevards, and no right-hand turns at busy traffic intersections.

"The inability of drivers to handle their cars in a jam in daylight and the blinding lights of vehicles at night are two of the principal causes of accidents," he avers, after fifteen years' experience in motor work.

Safety Week!
Motorists and pedestrians alike know that yesterday Safety Week, under the direction of The Glendale Evening News, began, and will continue to and including next Saturday.

Safety Week!
Every motorist will do his or her best to follow rules and regulations devised to cut down the number of accidents.

Safety Week!
Congregations in churches yesterday were informed about the campaign to reduce the number of accidents.

Safety Week!
Service clubs are taking an active interest in Safety Week and members are co-operating with The Glendale Evening News to make the campaign an impressive one.

Importance of Signaling
It would seem that in view of the fact of the importance of properly given signals to the person who gives them as well as to other users of the highway, that everyone would be exceedingly particular to comply with Section 130 of the California vehicle act, and give good and sufficient signals to all other drivers of his or her intention to stop or change course.

However, an analysis of accidents and their causes, made by the public safety department of the Automobile Club of Southern California, shows that eleven per cent of traffic accidents are attributed to failure to signal or improper signals.

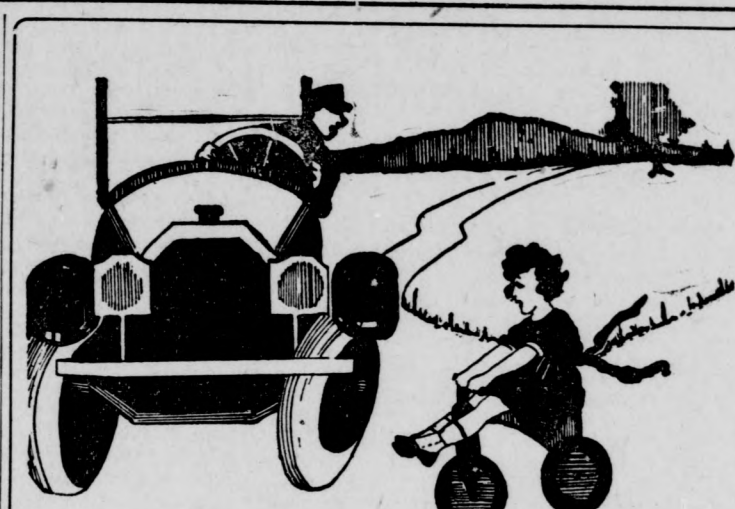

There is hardly a motorist who has not come up behind another automobile and has seen a hand stuck out for a second and the natural supposition is that the person ahead is going to turn, but it develops that this was not a signal but simply that the driver was pointing out a beautiful view or knocking out the ashes from his cigar or cigarette. A general observance of our California law on this subject would eliminate the possibilities of any such misunderstanding, because our present act

Hopi Indians Will Hold Snake Dance To Break Drought

KEEP THE KIDDIES OFF THE HIGHWAY

PUBLIC SAFETY DEPARTMENT of the AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Automobiles And Children

The idea of killing a child is abhorrent to every red-blooded individual, and yet, through the operation of automobiles, every year hundreds of children's lives are sacrificed throughout the United States. In none of these cases does it appear that the driver intentionally caused this horror to come to the child and its parents. They all result from moments of thoughtlessness, or carelessness.

It is true that in many cases the inquest brings out the fact that the child unexpectedly ran out into the street; but if the driver of the automobile had been following the practice of slowing down—having his car under control—whenever he observed children along the side of the road, realizing that children will always do the unexpected, even when apparently engrossed in play in the yard, such an accident would not have occurred.

It is impossible to lay down any set of rules for driving where children are observed to be on the side of the street. The best thing to do is to keep in mind the distance covered per second at different rates of speed, and the distance necessary to bring your car to a stop while traveling at these speeds, and then use your best judgment when approaching any child. Consider that these children might be your own, or the children of some one close to you, and drive by them just as carefully as you would like to have other drivers drive by your children.

You will find that if you keep this thought uppermost in your mind your car will be pretty much under control when nearing children.

Be particularly careful when approaching schools, or crossings that school children use. In Southern California they are all very effectively posted by the Automobile Club of Southern California. Remember that the children have been cooped up all day in school, and they are only exercising a normal, natural desire to release their pent-up energy when they tear across a street after school is dismissed. If your car is down to fifteen miles, or less, per hour, you have a good set of brakes, and you are looking out for children, you will save yourself a great many unnecessary shocks.

When all motorists begin to look out for children and to drive carefully when near them, we shall be able to point with pride to the decrease in the United States in the fatalities to children from automobiles, instead of with horror to the hundreds of children now killed every year in this manner.

U.S. AVIATORS ICE BOUND AS STORM RAGES

Yankees May Be Compelled To Change Route If Journey Continues

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.
ABOARD U. S. S. RICHMOND OFF REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 11.—(By Wireless.)—Every effort of the American round the world flyers to try to find means to continue their globe encircling flight was balked today by severe Arctic weather.

The cruiser Raleigh, ordered to investigate ice conditions near Angmagssalik, Greenland, was so cloaked in fog that its skipper was afraid to attempt moving it.

The severe weather up and down the whole east coast of Greenland prevented any attempts of exploration.

Denies World Flight Trip to Be Abandoned

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Establishment of a base at Uka-lut, east of Cape Farewell, on the Greenland coast, is now the objective of the American "round-the-world" flyers, ice-bound in Iceland, said a despatch to the navy department this afternoon from the cruiser Milwaukee.

Lieutenant Leigh Wade, the flier who was forced down, has gone to Uka-lut, aboard the cruiser Raleigh to make arrangements for the fliers.

If a base is established at Uka-lut, it will be necessary for the fliers to make a 750-mile hop from Iceland to Greenland.

Fliers Determined
Reports that the world flight is to be abandoned are "absolutely false," according to a cablegram to the chief of the air service today from Lieutenant Lowell Smith, commander of the expedition.

The fliers are going to bring their ships into the United States, Smith declared, even if they have to put on wheels and fly straight across to Labrador, a distance of 1500 miles.

GIVE RULES FOR CHURCH SUCCESS

Methodist Speakers Reveal Factors Essential to Live Organization

"The Only Unfailing One" was the subject of an inspiring sermon by Dr. H. I. Rasmus at the First Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning, when God's overshadowing providence was shown in all ages and under all circumstances.

At night there was a symposium on the subject: "What It Takes to Make a Live Church." Dean Swindell, C. D. Lusby, Judge Cornett and C. W. Ingledue each spoke ten minutes on the subject.

Needs Are Stressed

The first speaker, Dean Swindell, stressed the importance of stewardship, tithing and a hearty support of the pastor as prime factors of a live church. C. D. Lusby likened the live church member to a successful salesman. He must have three elements to win success, faith, knowledge, and wisdom. He emphasized the high calling of the individual who presents the gospel to his friends and associates. Every church member should cultivate successful salesmanship for the church. This will produce a live church.

Judge Cornett, a newcomer from West Virginia, was the next speaker. He briefly reviewed the work of the Methodist church. "It is not an experiment," declared he. "It needs no apology, no defense. No sensationalism is required, but a continued, forceful preaching of the Word. The old but ever new gospel of Christ will produce a live church today as it has in the past. Remember that individually it is our duty to get our lights to shine that others

Pastor Welcomed on Return From Europe

Rev. Clifford A. Cole, pastor of the Central Christian church, who returned last week from a trip abroad to attend the world's Sunday school convention in Glasgow, Scotland, was heartily welcomed home Sunday by large audiences at the morning and night services at his church.

A crowded auditorium was waiting Sunday morning when Rev. and Mrs. Cole entered the church for the morning worship, and as they stood on the rostrum the audience stood and gave the chautauqua salute. Special features of the homecoming event were many lovely California flowers. At the night service Mr. Cole told of his trip.

Little Rock Visitor Entertained by Niece

Mrs. Albert C. Read, 360 West Broadway, is entertaining her aunt, Mrs. Nannie Henderson of Little Rock, Ark., who will remain in Glendale for several weeks. During her stay here Mrs. Henderson will visit points of interest in Southern California, including Catalina Island.

Seeing our good works, shall glorify our Father who is in heaven." C. W. Ingledue was the last speaker. He viewed the question from the standpoint of an efficiency expert. From a given investment and running expense he deduced that certain results should be obtained. He classed them under five heads: Biblical education for young and old; youth more especially; spiritual advancement; visitation of the sick, shut-ins and strangers; community service and welfare work in which the church should lead, evangelism. This is the vital work of the church and is the best of its life, and with action along these lines the church is a profitable institution, a credit to any community.

CHIROPRACTOR IS CONTEST WINNER

Dr. Albert Vack Is Awarded Prize at Convention in San Diego

Dr. Albert Vack, chiropractor, of 205 East Harvard street, took a prominent part in the chiropractors' convention held last week in San Diego, where he served on the committee drawing up a resolution urging cooperation with the state associations of the six Pacific states for the purpose of holding a permanent annual convention, and also won first prize in the oratorical contest on the subject, "How Can a Chiropractor Best Serve His Community?"

The move to unite the six Pacific states is considered the most important step taken by the chiropractors since the establishment of the California state board, and is the first definite step toward concerted organization out of the individual states.

In his oration Dr. Vack said in part, "To best serve your community is to train yourself and understand yourself and know yourself. If you do that then you will have the key to the things that will serve your community. You must teach the public confidence in you and make them feel that you are endeavoring to minister to humanity."

Routine Business on Elks' Lodge Schedule

Routine business will be considered tonight at the weekly meeting of Glendale Elks in the clubhouse on East Colorado street. Masson, the poetry by Henry Van Dyke, the autobiography by George Isles, the drama by Asa Dop Dickson, and the fiction by Hamilton W. Mable, and the last volume, edited by Lyman Abbott and others, besides containing a very comprehensive index, contains the following articles: "Books for study and Reading," "The Purpose of Reading," "How to Get the Best Out of Books" and "The Guide to Daily Reading."

Events in History "The Historical Tales," by Charles Morris, in fifteen volumes, are not fiction, but accounts of real events and characters. Some new books of travel and other non-fiction are: "The Lake Superior Country," by Longstreth; "Finding the Worth-While in the Southwest," by Saunders "Camp-ing Out," compiled by the Play-grounds and Recreation Association of America; "California, a Geologic wonderland," by Bailey; "Our American Wonders," by James; "The White Devil of the Black Sea," by Palen; "Borrowing From Your Bank," by Patterson; "Etiquette of Letter Writing," by Thornborough; "Wireless of Today," by Gibson; "Better Days," by Barton, and "What Is man?" by Thompson.

The summer recreation reading has not been neglected. In the juvenile department the "Bunny Brown" series, by the author of "The Bobby Twins," is proving the most popular, as well as the "Dorothy" series by Evelyn Raymond for older girls, while the

PLANS TO STUDY EASTERN METHOD

Haddock to Compare Ways Of Handling Subdivisions In Many Cities

Comparison of the methods used in handling sub-divisions will be made by Lon J. Haddock, of the firm of Haddock-Nibley company, who, with his wife and daughter, Miss Berenice Haddock, will leave Wednesday for a five weeks' trip to the principal cities of the east.

The knowledge gained in this way, Mr. Haddock states, will be applied, if it is found to possess advantages over those already in vogue in Southern California, in placing the new unit of the Haddock-Nibley property, adjoining the new city park, on the market immediately following his return. Rossmoyne, says Mr. Haddock, is practically sold out now, and the construction of the fiftieth house has already been started, with contracts made for the building of approximately one hundred more in the immediate future.

After spending two weeks in Salt Lake city, Mr. and Mrs. Haddock will go on to New York, where they will meet their son Vaughn, who has been in Europe for the past two years studying music and journalism, and who will arrive on the Leviathan about September 2.

Local Organist Wins Admission to Guild

Recognition of promising talent has come to Miss Mildred Brockway, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Brockway of 221 Richland avenue, by receiving associate membership in the American Guild of Organists.

Miss Brockway took an examination last May in Los Angeles for admittance into the guild, and she has just received word that she passed successfully and has been awarded a professional degree of A. A. G. O. She was only 18 years old at the time of the examination.

She was a graduate from the Glendale Union High school in June, 1924. Her earlier musical education was gained in Paris, London and New York. She is now studying with P. Shaul Hallett of Pasadena.

Daily Greeting To News Readers

WHEN A MAN FAILS—

He usually finds it hard not to envy the successful man. He adds nothing to his happiness by carrying a grudge. There is no scarcity of those who say "I told you so." Some other failure turns up to tell him how he did it. He usually damns himself harder than anyone else does. He need not add another sin by whimpering. His first impulse is to blame someone else.

AMERICANIZATION

That "alienism" does not present so great a problem as many of us think, especially now that immigration has been limited, is the statement made by Frank Johnston, Jr., Justice of the Appellate Court in Chicago. He says aliens are not trying to change the form of American government nor the fundamental ideas of American social life. He says history shows that incoming races have always adapted themselves to the established civilization of the dominant race and that American civilization does not contain so many complexities and is not so radically different from the civilization of the various European races that European immigrants cannot assimilate it. Our chief problem now is Americanization.

This ought not to be such a difficult problem. We have all had opportunity to observe how quickly children of foreign-born parents Americanize themselves when given half a chance. A few months in a public school and they are more American than some Americans. Of course when foreign people dwell together in groups or colonies, cling to their own language and their old traditions and customs, and do not send their children to American schools, the children cannot become Americanized. The only thing to do is to go into these little Italian and Russian and teach the children the English language and American customs, and they will do the rest. Another generation will see the last of these foreign colonies.

A woman was observing two tiny boys, unmistakably of foreign parentage, who were playing with a toy gun. Idly she wondered about their home life and whether or not they spoke the English language. Suddenly one of the boys pointed the gun at her and the other exclaimed, "You big mutt, don't point the gun at the lady."

There are political groups of foreign radicals in this country who are dangerous but they are comparatively small, and it ought not to be difficult to reckon with them. But the great majority of European immigrants now in this country and those to come, under the new immigration law, will quickly assimilate themselves if we give them half an opportunity.

BEAUTIFUL SCENERY AND RUBBISH

People who have guests from other sections of the country are often ashamed, when driving them about, to have loom up an enormous and unsightly pile of rubbish and junk, marring what would otherwise be a picturesque view and jarring upon the sense of what is fitting.

Not even the much-maligned billboard makes quite such a blot on the landscape as these heaps of tin cans, old tires, worn-out stoves, automobile tops and bodies, rusty wire and every imaginable kind of junk.

Strangers do not understand how rapidly this section of California has been built up and how many new homes have been established in the last few years, and they cannot comprehend that such problems as taking care of large amounts of rubbish have come upon us almost overnight. However, this problem is with us now and should not be overlooked. It is rather ridiculous to boast about beautiful scenery with these big heaps of debris staring us in the face.

The matter of caring for this sort of waste by melting and burning was brought up in Glendale two or three years ago but was dropped again. All sorts of propositions for improvement are up for consideration now and the good of the community demands that the problem of disposing of rubbish be properly solved.

THOUGHTLESSNESS

Thoughtlessness is the great source of much of the trouble in the world. Many people are well-meaning, but they are engrossed in their own affairs to such an extent that they sometimes forget there are others in the world to whom they owe consideration.

Every man who drives a car knows there are laws governing motor traffic, and most of them know what the laws are. But they have long since learned to drive, they are not reckless or careless, and they do not take the time to recite these rules before driving out of the garage each morning. And so they sometimes break the law thoughtlessly which, of course, is no excuse. Or they may studiously observe every rule of motor traffic and yet not take into account the careless driver and the reckless speeder, and so meet with an accident.

If Safety Week inaugurated by The Glendale Evening News accomplishes nothing else it will get people to thinking on the subject of motor traffic and accidents, and when people get to thinking results are assured. Only one in a thousand is deliberately reckless. The great body of Glendale drivers are considerate and careful, and when they begin thinking in unison how to cut down the toll of killed and injured in automobile accidents such disasters will be less frequent.

AIR MAIL AFFECTS WORLD

The United States postal mail service across this continent has caused England, France and other European countries to revolutionize their schedules in order to take full advantage of the service. Letters which formerly were sent by Suez to Australia and the Orient can reach their destinations much more quickly by taking the westward route, speeded on their way by the intrepid fliers of the United States postal service.

Also, in some cases where prompt connections with Pacific steamers is made, mail sent by this route may save as much as two weeks over the other route. Already there has been a noticeable increase in the European mail and the indications are that it will steadily grow, for time is money in transacting business by mail over long distances. The saving in interest alone is often an important item.

When it is realized that plans are now being considered that will make it possible to send mail from New York to Peking in sixty-five hours, it is seen that the United States air mail service is causing the whole world to recast its ideas of distance. The effect on business of such a service is almost incalculable and presages the dawn of a new age of international commerce.

An unfounded rumor rushed through here today claiming that several "fashionable" bathing suits at Venice had been ruined by a rip tide.

Often the merit of a case is determined by the enemies it makes.

Running in debt is not difficult, but crawling out is a big job.

La Follette—From College to Presidential Candidate

As the pictures indicate, SENATOR ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE of Wisconsin has affected a different hirsute adornment at almost every stage of his career from college student to independent candidate for president of the United States. The pictures show him (1) as a student in the University of Wisconsin; (2) district attorney of Dane county, Wisconsin; (3) candidate for Congress—when the high pompadour that has distinguished him the rest of his life, first made its appearance; (4) as member of the House of Representatives; (5) governor of Wisconsin, in 1900; (6) when he became United States senator, in 1906, and (7) as he is today.

Club Des Cent
By DR. FRANK CRANE

A few years ago a club was founded in France called the Club des Cent, which, as its name shows, had a membership strictly limited to one hundred, and was devoted to keeping up the tradition of French cooking and encouraging good hotel keeping.

This organization has, since its foundation, undertaken a regular survey of France and it is reckoned that each of its members has already traveled, by motor car, twenty-five thousand miles in search of good and comfortable inns.

In fact, the Club des Cent is not only ready to patronize palaces and good-class hotels, but also the most modest village inn, provided it is scrupulously clean and provided also that the cooking is good.

Some of the mottoes of the club are worth looking over. They are:

"Hotel keepers, give us good attendance and you will become rich. Give us bad attendance and it will be the worse for you."

"Coffee made in advance is but bad coffee."

"Keep your cheese under a glass cover. Feed your guests, not the flies."

"No chemical extracts in cooking. In the preparation of meals the Club des Cent knows no other factory than the kitchen."

Every year this club awards two gold medals to the chefs and cooks who, after a searching inquiry, have proved worthy of such a distinction. Some while ago a group of members of this club went on a mission to the United States. They traveled on the French Line, or what is known as the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique. They found the cooking on these ships admirable, and that French culinary traditions were observed, and that on the two boats, the Paris and the France, the chefs were real gastronomic artists.

This year the Club des Cent awarded its gold medals to M. Jean Leer, chef of the France, and M. Jean Lindauer, chef of the Paris. These medals were presented to the recipients at a breakfast, or luncheon given on board the France, when M. J. dal Fiaz, the president of the great French shipping company, presided, and when the members of the Club des Cent and their friends gathered in force to do homage to these chefs who had so successfully initiated many travelers into the delights of real old-fashioned French cooking.

The French are traditionally the best cooks in the world and it is but right that some organization should get behind this tradition and give it furtherance.

Today's Poem

TO A FRIEND
My love must be as free
As is the eagle's wing,
Hovering over land and sea
And everything.

I must not dim my eye
In thy saloon,
I must not leave my sky
And nightly moon.

Be not the fowler's net,
Which tays my flight,
And craftily is set
To allure the sight.

But be the favoring gale
That bears me on,
And still doth fill my sail
When thou art gone.

I cannot leave my sky
For thy caprice,
True love would soar as high
As even is.

The eagle would not brook
Her mate thus won,
Who trained his eye to look
Beneath the sun.

The Ravings Of a Grouch

I always feel like administering a swift kick to the fellow who looks with disdain on those less favored in this world's goods or in position, manners or morals. But we must have a certain amount of fun in life and this fellow certainly furnishes the comedy.

When I get the notion that I am a little better than my neighbor in regard to the things I possess, the work I can do, the way I conduct myself, or in any regard, I try to imagine myself up in an airplane hundreds of miles above the earth and looking down upon it. I imagine myself in a position where I can see all the people on the earth, engaged in their various activities. Then I look around at the other planets in the universe and see how really small the earth is. I am soon back in my place among the people of earth and my place has shrunk considerably and my egotism has had a severe jolt.

From my exalted vantage point I have seen those who really achieved wonders, I see those who have the faculty of amassing more money than I ever dreamed of. I see many who are really saintly while I am good merely because I have no desire to be otherwise. I see so many people who are really superior to me in wealth and fame and high position and conduct and then I see many who are wealthy and famous and occupy high stations who are infinitely inferior to some who have not these things.

There are very few men and women in the world who do not, at some time or other get an exaggerated idea of their importance. Many have chronic and incurable cases of egotism. But if they could make themselves see the universe, the world as a whole they would understand how unimportant they are and of how little moment their petty affairs.

When a man does his best in whatever work or walk of life he finds himself he has every right to the feeling of pride and satisfaction that comes to him. But there are a good many others in the world who are doing their best, with greater odds against them and with better results, so there is no occasion for feeling superior or looking with disdain on one a little lower in the scale in wealth or accomplishment.

Noted Film Director Is Sued for Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—Hollywood has not reformed so much, if an amended complaint in the divorce suit of Lena Rosen against Philip Rosen, director of "Abraham Lincoln" and other notable films, is a criterion of conditions. During the last two years, she alleges, he remained out at night at parties and while she was away he held parties in his home and associated with other women. He also threatened to place her in an asylum if she complained, it is set forth. They separated on April 2 of this year.

Another Housewife Made Happy

A LADY PHONED US A FEW WEEKS AGO AND ASKED:

"Do you sell a gas range that will can fruit and vegetables in the oven?" The little lady who answers about a million questions (more or less) for us each day, said, "We sure do, and I know it will, 'cause I have one in my own home." The lady said, "I am coming right down," and she did, and today she said, "Yes, I was rather skeptical about the No Bottom in Oven and the Lorain Oven Heat Regulator being able to do all you claimed it would, but never again! You should just see all the wonderful fruit and vegetables I have canned, and I just followed the directions that came with the range, and put the jars in the oven and set the Lorain, and I did not break a single jar. Oh, it's just splendid, and today I paid my first month's gas bill and it's much less than it used to be on the old stove which you took in."

DEATHS - FUNERALS

RALPH G. COOLE

The body of Ralph G. Coole, who died suddenly Friday, August 9, 1924, in Exeter, Calif., has been brought to Glendale for funeral and interment.

Mr. Coole died Friday while driving home from his office. He was suddenly seized with an attack of angina pectoris. Passing motorists saw his car leave the road and stop when coming in contact with a telephone pole. When they reached the car they found that Mr. Coole had died from the heart attack. He was 52 years of age at the time of his death.

For many years Mr. Coole had been an honored employee of the American Express company. He and his family lived for eight years in Glendale, and for four or five years in Los Angeles before going to Exeter. During this time he was connected with the same company.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Margaret J. Coole; and two sons, Lewis Coole of Exeter; and Montgomery Coole of Nogales, Ariz.

The deceased was a member of Fort Worth lodge, No. 148, F. and A. M., Fort Worth, Texas, and a member of Visalia Pyramid, No. 26, of Scouts.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the chapel of the Jewel City Undertaking company on North Brand boulevard at Wilson avenue. Unit lodge, No. 368, F. and A. M., will have charge. Interment will take place in Forest Lawn Memorial park.

DE RAYMOND FRANKLIN
De Raymond Franklin, who was a victim of accidental shooting September 22, 1922, in Glendale, died Saturday, August 9, 1924, at the family home in Lucerne valley at the age of 22 years and 10 months. His death followed influenza, which he contracted ten weeks ago.

The shooting episode, in which young Franklin was seriously wounded, happened at 346 North Adams street, where the Franklin family was then living. According to a report given at the time the Franklin boy with two companions was in the garage. One of the boys picked up a .38 calibre revolver and thinking it unloaded pointed it at Franklin and pulled the trigger, according to an account of the accident. The bullet entered the back of Franklin's neck, severing the spinal cord and resulting in complete paralysis from the waist down. At the time he was taken to the hospital, where little hope was held out for his recovery.

Later, he was taken to his parents' home and then the family moved from Glendale to Lucerne valley.

18. Daughters of Veterans, passed the following resolutions:
Whereas It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst, our dearly beloved brother, H. W. Hall, and though we shall miss him, we know our loss is his gain.

Therefore: Be it resolved that we, the Daughters of Veterans extend to the family, "our sisters," our heartfelt sympathy.
Be it further resolved that a copy of these Resolutions be sent to the family and a copy be spread on the minutes of the tent.

Sweet be thy sleep, Dear Brother, Thy tired hands are still.
Our hearts are filled with sorrow, And we in our anguish question, Why were you taken away?

The years of labor and sacrifice You gave for those you loved The thousands of cares and burdens You carried with help from above: Why could you not be spared To enjoy your labors' fruit?

Thus, questions our sorrowing But God in His Wisdom, called you home to rest.
Well done thou faithful servant, For such He bestows His love and care.
And we your sorrowing brothers Hope some day to meet you over there.

Drop In Steel Prices Continues; Tin Steady

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 11.—The general trend in steel prices continues downward, but there are no marked declines. Pipe, tinplate and rails continue at their prices of a year ago and are firm. Bonds have parted company from shapes and are now quoted at 2.40 bases as against 2.50c for shape. It requires only moderate-sized inquiries to develop prices on plates below the regular 2.15c quotations and 2c is understood to be possible on a good order. Bars are fairly firm, but sheets are easier, although there is little actual change in the formal quotations.

DAILY MURDER IS CHICAGO RECORD

Crime Commission Plans to Block Killing Wave in Windy City

By OWEN L. SCOTT
Special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—After a murder a day for seven months, the Chicago city fathers have commenced to concern themselves about this rapid depletion of the city's population.

In the first 213 days of this year, 205 citizens were slain, under circumstances that brought verdicts of murder from coroners' juries. The record is unprecedented for Chicago. Seldom, if ever, has it been equaled by any city in other war time.

Still the killing continues unabated and the killers usually go unsought or unpunished. This situation is causing the Chicago crime commission to plan a reorganization of the prosecuting agencies with more effective handling of murder cases in the courts. An anti-crime council is on the books for establishment as an emergency measure to block the murder wave.

Would Ban Guns
Charles E. Holden, president of the crime commission, sees the need of a thorough-going drive against lawless elements, while Chief of Police Morgan Collins believes the solution lies in the prohibition of gun owning and totting. Whatever the solution, the situation itself is a vexatious one. People are killed indiscriminately by robbers; women thus far have disposed of about twenty of their male friends, beer runners tag up goodly numbers of victims in their private battles with high jackers; taxi and labor wars fill their quota of slaughters, while the general run of killings are resulting from that fighting instinct which will turn to a handy gun when once aroused.

To make matters more serious, only a relatively small proportion of the slayers are caught and a smaller proportion punished. Of the nine murderers to be hanged, four of the nearly 300 persons who killed during the past year only two actually have gone to the gallows. The rest have obtained continuances, secured new trials or had their sentences changed to imprisonment.

Sees for Laws
The whole situation, Judge Harry S. McDevitt of Philadelphia, has observed, during a study of the local crime condition, is resulting in a breakdown of respect for law in Chicago.

Now has come a new police shake-up to be followed by one more attempt to jolt the joints of this metropolis out of their wild and wicked ways. The usual orders are out for a roundup of all criminals and former criminals. But just as soon as Chief Justice Caverly and State's Attorney Robert Crowe wind up the Loeb and Leopold trial, the Chicago crime commission plans to push its anti-crime council. All law enforcement agents and the courts are going to see if they can't make of Chicago a safe and respectable city safe from the depredation of the marauding criminals who have made life much more of a gamble hereabouts.

SAFE WEEK'S WINNARD'S TOPIC

Pastor Urges Honest Tryout Of Methods to Prevent Auto Accidents

"Ye do well to take heed," was the text used by Dr. James F. Winnard last night as a basis for his sermon on Safety Week.

"There has seldom been a time when we have been surrounded by as many peace-time dangers as at present," said Mr. Winnard. "The fire hazard, light and power shortage and conservation of water call for our constant concern. The automobile is fast becoming the juggernaut of the twentieth century. If this proposed Safety Week can be the means of saving a single life or saving from maiming some innocent individual, it will have served a good turn. But we are hoping for this week far-reaching results, and that not for this week only but for many weeks to come the influence of these days may be felt."

Regard for Laws
"We may not need more traffic laws but we do need more regard for the regulations we have. The time has come when the individual who is a law unto himself has no place on the highways as a driver of a motor car. The folly of the fool is to take a chance and succeed in one instance predisposes another and perhaps another when suddenly life is lost, property is destroyed and another fool suffers for his folly."

"In addition to the regulations concerning head lights, brakes, loads, etc., there should be a law compelling front and rear bumpers on every car and these to be placed at a standard height to insure greatest efficiency in case of accident. Every driver should be a firm believer in signs—and able and ready to make and take them. The sign language of the highway is a wonderful preventative of accident."

Spiritual Safety
"But there is a higher application of Safety Week principles than has been mentioned thus far. It relates to our moral and spiritual well being. It is safeguarded by the teaching of the Divine Word, which is the only infallible rule of faith and practice. Play safe. Heed yourself right and keep on your own side of the road. Follow Him, for He is able to keep you from falling and to present you faultless before the throne of His grace. While taking heed this week not to cause accident you are at the same time safeguarding yourself against receiving accidental injury."

"Give Safety Week an honest tryout."

states that a turn signal shall be given continuously during the last fifty feet traveled by the vehicle before making the turn.

Use Care in Signaling
When making these signals, make them in a positive manner. For instance, if you are going to turn to the left, hold your hand and arm out STRAIGHT instead of as though the bone in your arm were made of India rubber, which makes the left turn signal easily confused with the stop signal.

By grasping the steering wheel on the under side of the top, pulling down, it is possible to maintain the left arm in the position required by law for the entire fifty feet without in any way increasing the labor in making the turn.

This matter of signaling is such a simple thing that it would seem that everyone should signal properly, for his own protection, not from the sense of courtesy and consideration for other users of the road.

Cutting Corners
An analysis of the locations of automobile accidents shows that seventy-five per cent of them occur at street intersections, and that "cutting corners" is responsible for a large percentage of these accidents.

Drivers cut corners to save time and avoid checking their speed, but does it show very judgment to risk an accident to save the few seconds possible by such a dangerous practice? You may take a thousand chances and get away with it, but you can never tell when the one time will occur when the way is not clear and a collision will be the result.

Cut Down Speeds
A safe thing to remember when reaching any intersection is that all intersections are potential danger points. Slow down. If you are going to turn, give the signal distinctly of your intention to turn and of the direction in which your turn is to be made. If you are making a turn to the left, pass beyond the center of the street and turn around the button, or the place where the button should be. When turning to the right, keep close to the curb before reaching the intersection and while making the turn.

Remember that time saved at an intersection may be lost in court, and it is much easier to turn corners correctly than it is to pay for an accident.

Give the other fellow the same consideration you would like to have him give you. Then drive accordingly.

DELEGATES TELL OF C. E. MEETING

Mt. Hermon Conference Is Subject of Report at Church Gathering

On the return of the official delegates to the Mt. Hermon summer conference, sent by the Intermediate Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church, interesting reports were tendered at the regular 6 o'clock meeting last night, Sunday, August 10.

The speakers of the evening were Marguerite Naughton, Fred Fallis, Mildred Sooy, and Harold Parker, all members of the organization, who, together with Howard L. Brown, society superintendent, attended the full program of the conference, which is held annually at Mt. Hermon, near Santa Cruz. All the delegates said they had been impressed and greatly affected by the spiritual atmosphere, and the splendid fellowship in devotion, class and recreation, which the conference afforded them.

Victory Circle
Mary Stanley, as the leader of the evening conducted the meeting. The topic intended for the meeting was "Beautiful Things I See in Nature," but this was postponed for the meeting on the following Sunday, when an outdoor Victory Circle meeting will take place. The Victory Circle is one of the big features of the Mt. Hermon gathering, and at this time the conference will be re-echoed still more, the meeting to be held on East Cypress street, Oakridge. In the announcement of the meeting, special attention was given to the Christian Endeavor society party. For Tuesday night, August 12, to be held in honor of the girls of the membership, and sponsored by the boys, as losers in a recent contest, the affair to take place at Alhambra.

Special announcement was also made of the monthly business meeting scheduled for this coming Friday, August 15, at the home of Miss Mary Stanley, corner of Windsor and Maryland. As a special feature of the evening, will be read the Prayer Meeting Department paper, edited by John L. Simpson.

MANY PATHWAYS LEAD TO CHRIST

Mission of Church to Hold Savior Up as Example, Says Darnelle

"The great church universal is working for the spread of the knowledge of God throughout the world, and, although many different paths lead upward through the shadows of doubt and uncertainty, those who faithfully follow them will eventually stand in the presence of Christ," said Rev. B. J. Darnelle, in his sermon yesterday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church, in preaching on "The Mission of the Church."

"The mission of the church," he declared, "is to preach the gospel of Christ crucified to every creature, and it is the duty and the mission of the church to hold out to suffering humanity the example of the Man of Nazareth. Not all can be reached by the same influence, but every religious organization will inevitably satisfy the spiritual needs of some one."

"The church of Christ must be preached and heard, and it is not a place where political discussions or literary discussions can be profitably carried on, nor must the preacher temporize or equivocate in dealing with right or wrong as he honestly sees it."

"With ourselves we hold the kingdom of heaven, and we enter it through the consciousness that, to the best of our ability, we have followed the teachings of God."

During the early part of the service prayers were offered for the American armies who are essaying the world fight.

VIC ALEXANDER WINS

MEXICALI, Mexico, Aug. 11.—"Kid" Savage of Mexicali had a defeat chalked up against him today, as a result of last night's twenty-round bout against Vic Alexander, colored lightweight of Los Angeles, but he did not win. Savage, entered the ring, according to Mexican authorities, with tin foil and plaster of paris packed in his gloves. This was discovered by police and box officials before the fight started, and Savage was fined for his breach of boxing rules. Alexander was awarded the decision by Referee Woodbury, after twenty rounds.

OPTIMISM RULES INDUSTRIES HERE

Anti-California Propaganda Refuted by Progress Through Southland

By GIL A. COWAN
For Southland News Service.
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—For every paragraph of pessimistic propaganda published by papers "back east" relative to conditions in Southern California, three paragraphs of optimism arise offering opportunity to the far-seeing person for profit.

Relative to the tourist situation, which has been splendid this summer, the hotel man, apartment house owner and builder of homes will be interested in what Lucius Boomer, noted eastern hotel man, has to say while stopping at the Biltmore.

Wealthy Tourists
"The number of persons seeking the mild winter climate of California this year will exceed that of last," he opines from advice received by the New Willard at Washington, the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia and the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. He predicts a record number of wealthy tourists are heading for California.

Industrially speaking, Los Angeles has only begun its program of expansion. The San Pedro Daily Pilot says:
"The Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation has announced a series of harbor projects here which include the development of wharves and other port facilities, the proposed leasing of a fleet of government-owned vessels by Los Angeles shipping men, and the inauguration of the first direct steamer service between here and the Orient. The shipbuilding corporation will install four new repair shops and install a new drydock. In addition, a large investment will be made in new equipment."

Other Projects
Announcement is made today of a new phone unit known as the Rampart exchange in the Wilshire district, having been switched in by the Southern California Telephone company who care for 7,500 additional customers.

The Pacific Electric is spending more than $1,000,000 in block by block paving programs on Sunset and Glendale boulevards, not to mention the construction of the Glendale-Hollywood subway.

Record vegetable crops, millions of dollars in sugar beets, citrus, walnuts and deciduous fruits, augment the oil, film, mineral and agricultural wealth of the southland this summer, keeping it the white spot of America's economic map.

LOWER RATE FOR RIDE HELPS TAXI

Reduction Results In Gain In Business; Use Cabs For Long Rides

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924
NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—New York has developed taxicabitis and the epidemic bids fair to spread to other cities. The first symptoms made their appearance at the same time the larger number of taxicab companies and operators reduced their charges to twenty cents a mile. Opinions of taxicab men differ widely as to whether the reduction in fares has been profitable so far as cash receipts are concerned, but all agree that undoubtedly it has stimulated the "riding habit."

During the recent hot spell, sweating citizens unable to obtain comfort in their homes, have spent hours at night riding about the parks and streets in a cab-created breeze.

A constant string of taximeters have lined the roads to the Long Island beaches and the road to Coney Island has been congested with cab riders since the hot spell began. Resorts 20 and 30 miles from New York now are visited constantly by taxi parties who find that the cab fares for a party of five or more amount to little more than regular railroad fares.

Bargain Rates
Much of the effect of the reduced rates, however, is psychological. For short rides the new rates effect a comparatively slight saving, but the idea of "bargain rides" undoubtedly made a wide appeal, especially among women patrons.

The feminine patrons are given chief credit for the abolition of misleading signs of some taxi drivers. These carried the words "20 cents a mile" in large letters but added the statement in small type that the owner could not afford to operate his car at that rate. Many women enticed into high rate cabs by such signs immediately called policemen and the signs soon disappeared.

The question of maintaining the lower rates still is being vigorously debated. Some companies declare that the low rate has cut idle cruising time from 50 to 40 per cent with consequent betterment of receipts. One company has decided to make the rate 20 cents for the first half mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter and some still stick to the 30-cent rate.

The drivers themselves, however, seem generally opposed to the reduced fare. One man who owns his cab declared today he could see no profit in hauling a crowd of five 20 miles into the country at a price of $4 and running back empty. Others complain that the reduction in rates has also produced a reduction in tips.

NEW INFLUENCES ENTER CAMPAIGN

Warren and Harvey Assume Importance In Eyes of Political Experts

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Washington is wondering if new political influences are coming into the life of President Coolidge. The long visit which Charles B. Warren, former ambassador to Mexico, has made at the White House, admittedly has not been related wholly to Mexican affairs.

Then, too, Colonel George Harvey has been consulted recently, coming to Washington from his summer home in Deal, N. J., for this purpose.

Colonel Harvey was the great supporter and confidant of President Harding. In fact, he is one of those who claimed to have made Mr. Harding president. Colonel Harvey has not been asking a prominent part in Republican affairs since the death of the late president. He did not "make" any of the candidates this year, nor Mr. Coolidge, nor Mr. Davis, nor even Senator La Follette. But apparently he is coming to the fore again and is definitely lined up under the Coolidge banner. In any event he seems to have been consulted by the president on the subject of the latter's speech of acceptance.

Coolidge's Speech
It is not generally realized, but Mr. Coolidge's acceptance speech will be his first political speech in something like four years. Although he has held public offices of various sort for going on to twenty-two years, Mr. Coolidge is not regarded as being "political minded." In particular, he avoids controversy as a rule, contenting himself with making certain definite statements which he holds to be fundamental and incontrovertible. In his forthcoming speech, the president, it is said, will follow the same course, taking positive ground on the issues he believes should be brought before the people, but avoiding any denunciation of his political adversaries.

Mr. Coolidge's essay into political discussion is being watched with the same interest that attaches to the earlier debut of his principal opponent for the presidency, John W. Davis.

Mr. Coolidge came into the White House without any direct political action on his part. His various speeches as vice-president did not attract nation-wide attention as an active campaigner or candidate for the highest office in the land, still remain to be demonstrated.

Warren's Position
The position Mr. Warren is to have in the president's political cabinet still is a bit indefinite. Mr. Warren, too, was a close friend of the late President Harding and offered his services to him both before and after the election. It has been said that Mr. Warren might act as liaison officer or go-between, for the "old guard" with National Chairman Butler. But it appears now that a great deal, if not most, of the friction which developed between the old timers in the G. O. P., and the new chairman of the national committee from Boston, has been ironed out at the need of a diplomatic intermediary may no longer be considered necessary.

Mr. Warren is extremely popular with the older members of the national committee, having served for a long time on that body himself. He is thoroughly representative of the "old guard" and its "never surrender" ideas, but he also has kept step with the times and is generally acceptable to the Progressives who have remained loyal to the party. While Mr. Warren will in no sense supplant Chairman Butler as chief political adviser to the president, he has that wide political experience which some of the president's intimates lack and his knowledge of many lawbreakers in general is sure to be used by the president to the fullest advantage.

Helped on Committee

It will be recalled that Mr. Warren traveled all the way from Mexico City to Cleveland, Ohio, to act as chairman of the resolution committee of the Republican National committee. He did this at the personal request of President Coolidge. Mr. Warren's high status at the White House and in Republican political councils is attributed largely to James B. Reynolds, now of this city but formerly of Boston. Mr. Reynolds at one time was secretary of the national committee. He is now the vice-president of a National bank in this city and the chief executive is one of his depositors. Organized labor, generally, is credited with owning a large block of stock in this bank—an interesting situation in view of the efforts of the American Federation of Labor to swing labor into line for La Follette and Wheeler.

Mr. Reynolds in Massachusetts was a close political associate of Calvin Coolidge and led the forces at the Chicago convention in 1920 which tried to get the nomination for Mr. Coolidge at that time. Mr. Reynolds is said to have recommended Mr. Warren as chairman of the resolutions committee and to have brought him into closer contact with the president. Mr. Reynolds also has agreed to take charge of the Washington branch headquarters of the Republican National committee.

Meaning of Secretary whose appointment as secretary to the president a little less than a year ago was hailed as purely a political move, seems to be taking less and less of an active part in the political side of the president's life.

Its purity cannot be over-emphasized.

CHILDREN FLOCK TO PLAYGROUNDS

Young Folks Are Attending Tournaments Held Near Eagle Rock School

EAGLE ROCK, Aug. 11.—Cleveland Heath, brother of Chief Robert Lee Heath of the Los Angeles police department, who recently succeeded Chief August Vollmer, is building a residence at 5323 Summer avenue and will make Eagle Rock his home.

The Community playground at the Eagle Rock school is meeting with the interest of a larger number of children than it did at its start. Recent tournaments have called out a large number of the young folks. In the elimination tournament of checker games John Lincoln Reiter won first honors in the Junior section, although a number of the boys against whom he played were older than himself. In the Senior division, John Sheets was victorious over all comers. These boys are now engaged in competing with the victors of other Los Angeles school playgrounds.

A series of baseball games have made the playground life interesting for the boys during the past weeks also.

Dr. Mary LeClere has returned from a pleasant vacation trip on the "Rim of the World" route. She drove her own car to Arrowhead, supplied with camping outfit. Accompanying her were two nieces, Ruby and Margaret LeClere and her mother, Mrs. H. B. LeClere. The party camped out wherever an inviting site offered itself, and on one occasion they all had the thrill of hearing a cougar scream.

The many friends of Mrs. Evelyn Hobbs, of Windermere avenue, will be glad to hear that she is retaining her health and that she hopes to be able to return to Eagle Rock in the fall. At present she is at Idyllwild.

Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Carry and family, of Ellenwood Drive, have returned from a pleasant vacation trip. A part of this trip was through the Yosemite National Park.

FOUR ENTERED IN VALLEY CONTEST

Plans for Exposition Going Forward Rapidly; Will Offer Prizes

BURBANK, Aug. 11.—The hats of four candidates for the honor of "Queen" of the forthcoming San Fernando Valley Industrial exposition are in the ring: Margaret Sanderson, Esther Smith, Mrs. J. C. Isbell and Ruth Lockett.

Since the first announcement of this contest the plans of the committee in charge have been enlarged to take in a $100 diamond ring which will go to the woman winning the honor. This ring is on exhibition at the W. E. Lawrence jewelry store at 115 East San Fernando boulevard. Those who have seen it pronounce it well worth the effort of any woman to possess.

The committee in charge of the contest comprises Mrs. A. C. Gage, Mrs. Ben Farley and Mrs. Charles E. Hough. The voters will be counted each day, it is announced, so their friends can know of the standing of the candidates.

Rev. Perry L. Mitchell has resigned as pastor of the Baptist church and he and his family have left for Virginia, following a request some weeks ago by the advisory board of the church, that he move from Glendale to Burbank and reside on the field.

Mr. Mitchell was for eight years pastor of one of the Baptist churches of Richmond. His wife's mother recently left California for Virginia. Mr. Mitchell stated that in California there were almost 1000 Baptist pastors trying to locate in California and in Virginia there were over 200 churches without a pastor. Mr. Mitchell stated that he would appreciate it if the church here would accept his resignation and allow him to go south, where he labored successfully for so many years and where his family wished to live.

MONTROSE NOTES

Montrose is having its share of evangelistic meetings. No sooner is one set over and done with than a new tent tabernacle is erected. This time the evangelists from the Wigglesworth camp meeting in Los Angeles present Evangelist D. A. Barth, who for twelve years was a missionary to China. C. E. Maness, Pastor W. W. Fisher and Dawson MacCullough will also assist in the work.

In the absence of her husband, Mrs. S. S. Myers has full charge of the management of the only sandwich shop in Montrose, known as the B. & B. shop.

Since his return from a trip up through the Canadian Rockies, Fire Warden Mead is busy getting the valley cleaned up. Mr. Mead is pleased with the cooperation he is receiving from the property owners of vacant lots as they are rapidly cleaning up the unimproved property, thus lessening the fire hazard. In regard to the fire hydrants Mr. Mead states that at this time no equipment has been ordered or placed in Montrose or La Crescenta though the department is in need of some chemical tanks and a truck to carry them. The Southern California Edison company is assisting in the work by cleaning and grading on the south of Verdugo City in order to give the twenty-five foot clearance between the ground and its large transmission line.

Seats for the Montrose theatre have been ordered for delivery on September 15. With the seats in place it is expected the first show will be given about the last of September. The building will be a decided addition to the business district of Montrose, being of grey hollow tile with two attractive shops on either side of the entrance.

Frank Zittel is home again after several weeks spent in the Research hospital in Glendale. Mr. Zittel, who is the foreman of the Bettingen Lumber company, Montrose yard, was seriously injured by a fall from a load of lumber while engaged in his work.

Friends of Mrs. E. N. Nettleton, who has been in the hospital for the past six weeks, are delighted to hear she will be home on Wednesday. Mrs. Nettleton is a popular club member being one of the older members of the La Crescenta Woman's club.

Wading Pool Planned For Tujunga Resort

TUJUNGA, Aug. 11.—A wading pool for the small boys and girls is to be built in the Garden of the Moon park, sponsored by the Tujunga Kiwanis club. The pool will be free to the youngsters who are too small to enjoy the privileges of the larger swimming tank patronized by adults. A committee of Kiwanis members was appointed by President Stover to complete the arrangements, which will be carried out under the direction of M. F. Gilmer.

Tujunga C. of C. Will Meet Tuesday Night

TUJUNGA, Aug. 11.—The August meeting of the Tujunga Chapter of Commerce will be held Tuesday night, with Judge H. H. Breit presiding for the first time since his election to office following the resignation of L. H. Fisher. The meeting will be held in the school auditorium, and several important community questions are to be taken up.

Sharing Community Benefits

The future and destiny of Glendale are in the hands of the people. The city has reached heights we had not thought to be able to scale. Forces outside of ourselves, such as our location and our environment have aided us heretofore, but the further heights must be reached by our own efforts. Intelligence and loyalty are the staffs upon which we must lean in our climb to the higher peaks.

Glendalians, anxious to share their good fortune, are luring their friends and relatives here in large numbers with tales of our delightful climate, our healthful altitude, our beautiful surroundings, the cordiality and enterprise of our citizens and the great progress we are making as a city.

While it is praiseworthy to wish to share the good things of life, there is another side to the question. Nature is responsible for some of our blessings, but there are other features that contribute to make Glendale an ideal home city, that man must control. We must work intelligently to maintain and increase, as Glendale grows numerically, those advantages that should go hand in hand with our natural benefits.

The best churches and schools, good public utility service at reasonable rates, a clean, moral atmosphere, capable and conscientious public officials, wide-awake business and professional men, and a metropolitan business district. The co-operation of all our citizens is necessary to keep these things commensurate with Glendale's importance as she continues to grow.

Civic patriotism is necessary, a loyalty to Glendale institutions, patronage of Glendale stores and industries, and a whole-hearted acceptance of the slogan, "Glendale for Glendalians."

The men and women who sponsor this advertisement are working for a Greater Glendale. Your co-operation with them will be appreciated.

SPEECH DEFECTS—No. 3

Last week I gave you a resume of an article on speech defects by Mabel Farrington Gifford, B. S., director of the speech clinic of the University of California hospital. Miss Gifford's conclusion after her long experience is that the only method of cure of the nervous speech defects (stammering, stuttering, cluttering and nervous hesitation) is: psychologic re-education. That consists of teaching the conscious control of the speech mechanism and giving new positive ideas of control, poise and confidence. The three predominant fears—obsession that the speech organs will refuse to work, the fear of being ridiculed and the fear of being thought inferior, have to be destroyed.

Most children stumble in their speech at first, just as they do in learning to walk; and it is only after slow and conscious work that both become subconscious and perform without difficulty. Don't forget that children imitate the sounds which they hear. That is why it is important for parents not to talk baby talk to children when they begin to learn to talk and, as far as possible, to have their associates use correct language and well-modulated tones. The child who is brought up under the circumstances where there are shrieking, peevish and angry voices most of the time is very apt to have the same type of voice, and what is equally bad, the same type of disposition.

The first thing that has to be done is to find out the cause of the speech defect. Of course if it is an organic one (one due to some malformation like harelip, feeble jaw, narrow palate, cleft palate, sluggish palate, nasal obstructions, tongue-tie and very irregular teeth) that has to be remedied. If it is of nervous origin, then the stammerer must be taught carefully the right habit. It may take two months or two years.

The nervous causes of speech defects are nearly always found in some deep-seated sense of fear. In the psychologic re-education of the patient these fears have to be searched out and talked over until the repression of them ceases. You can see from this the importance of guarding the child against all unnecessary fears such as the telling of gruesome ghost stories, the threatening of terrible and unnatural punishments, the shutting in dark closets and things of such nature.

It is highly important to exercise patience and tact with the child, not to call attention to the defect unnecessarily, not to punish for it and not to allow the other children to make fun. Try to impress the child with the thought that he is going to overcome the defect, that he is getting better day by day. Try to instill confidence in him. Tell him of Demosthenes, one of the great orators of the world, who was so stammering that he had to speak in a low, firm tone, as "even as possible." Open the mouth freely and let the sound come out. Speak slowly to enable the vocal mechanism to do its work properly. If the child is old enough to read he should be asked to read aloud for ten minutes, six times a day, for six months. He must not allow himself to hurry his reading or to grow weary of it. The stammerer's and stutterer's habit of making faces is due to his efforts to articulate more strongly and distinctly, whereas the trouble is that he already articulates with too much effort.

The correction of speech defect is so important, mothers, that it is best to take the child to some special instructor or school, if possible.

The average family is fond of pickled watermelon rind and pumpkin chips. Here are some good recipes for these delicacies:

Pickled Watermelon Rind: Remove a thick paring from the outside of the melon (that is, a paring about one-third inch thick), then also remove and discard all the pink part and seeds. The portion which is picked is that which lies directly under the green outer-rind. Cut this into "fingers" about three inches long and about an inch wide. Cook four pounds of these till tender in the following sirup: Put into a saucepan three-quarters of a pint of cider vinegar, two pounds of granulated sugar, one-half ounce of stick cinnamon and one-fourth ounce of whole cloves. Let this mixture simmer for 15 minutes before you begin cooking the pieces of rind in it, a few at a time. Pack the cooked rind-pieces in hot, sterilized jars and turn over them the remaining hot sirup. Seal airtight at once.

Preserved Pumpkin: Pare a pumpkin, scrape away seeds and scrub inside part, then cut the remainder into thin, oblong lengths. Weigh these pieces and then measure out an equal weight in granulated sugar. Put alternate layers of the pumpkin pieces and the sugar in a preserving kettle and let stand overnight in a cool place, covered, to draw out the juice. In the morning add to the preserving kettle three large washed lemons cut into slices with seeds discarded. Put the kettle over a moderate fire and bring to a boil, letting the mixture simmer till the pumpkin is transparent. Then remove pumpkin with a skimmer and cook down the sirup till it is thick. Reheat pumpkin in the sirup and when again boiling-hot, turn all into hot, sterilized glass jars and seal. Or use this method:

Sweet Pickled Pumpkin Chips: Wash one large lemon, cut it into very thin slices and put these into a preserving kettle. Discard seeds. Heat over fire till very hot, then add the firm part of one medium-sized pumpkin cut in chips (after the pumpkin has been pared and the seeds and spongy inner part removed). Also add sugar, nine cups of cider vinegar, two teaspoons of ground cloves, three teaspoons of ground cinnamon, one teaspoon of ground allspice and three tablespoons of chopped ginger root. Boil gently till the pumpkin chips are transparent (about one and one-half hours). Turn all into hot sterilized jars and seal.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman, in care of the "Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

Fifteen Motorists Face Arrest Warrants

Fifteen persons ordered to appear before Police Judge F. H. Lowe this morning to answer charges of violating the motor vehicle law failed to appear in court and warrants for their arrests will be issued. It is said. The failure of these defendants to appear will mean added expense to the city, Judge Lowe said, since it will be necessary for bailiffs to find them and bring them before the court. The docket this morning numbered fifty cases, the majority of them being for speeding.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

EARS AND CHARACTER

A great deal of character can be told from the ears if one is the least bit clever. Not very much has been written on this subject. As a general rule large ears belong to coarse natures, and thick ears to brutal ones. Small ears indicate refinement, long ears an intellectual nature, pointed ears a whimsical one. What is known as "good blood" or good family can be told better by the ears than by any other feature, for the shape of the ears will go down unmodified through many generations of a family. There is the famous Bourbon ear, so well known that it got many a descendant of that royal family in trouble after the French revolution.

Whatever you can do to your other features, you can't change the shape of your ears. But if they're ugly you can cover them up, which is a great comfort; and if they do not lie flat you can train them into position by wearing ear-cups at night, or by having a simple and inexpensive operation performed.

Many cases of apparent deafness are due to nothing but badly cared for ears. Lumps of hardened wax collect in the canal, shutting out sound and sometimes producing eczema or erythema of the surrounding skin. In any such trouble go at once to an ear specialist; in any case go once a year or once in six months and have the ears syringed; or go to your doctor. He will pour a little oxygenated boracic water into each ear. After this has been ten minutes or a quarter of an hour in the ear canal he will dry it out with cotton and pour in a little luke-warm oil. You can give this treatment to yourself or your family, but I advise you to ask your doctor, first, the proportion of oxygen and boracic powder to the water, and the special sort of oil he prefers. But if you are hard of hearing, go to a specialist for the syringing.

Mildred S.—If you shave the hair on your neck or arms it will come in coarser and most likely much thicker. You had better shave the hair on arms with peroxide; dampen that on the neck with the question.—The Editor.

J. F. Mentzer Home Visited by Burglar

Six dresses and a leather hand bag containing material for a suit were taken from the residence of J. F. Mentzer, at 326 West Cypress street, some time Sunday, according to a report made to the police department by Mr. Mentzer. The hand bag, which was of light brown leather, had the initials "R. M." on it, Mr. Mentzer said. Entrance to the house was gained by means of a pass key used on the front door, police found upon investigation.

Prosecutor of Boy Slayers In Attack

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—A savage, satirical attack on the conclusions of the defense attorneys, that Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb were "mentally diseased" and "emotionally children" when they kidnapped and killed Robert Franks, was launched today by the state's attorneys, who are seeking to send the collegian slayers to the gallows for their crime. Dr. Harold S. Hulbert, the fourth and last of the array of defense doctors, was made the subject of this assault within five minutes after he had rounded out his opinions today by declaring that mental unsoundness and that alone made the two students murder young Franks so unconcerned.

State's Attorney Crowe unloaded volleys of sarcasm on the defense attorneys. He compelled Dr. Hulbert to trace and retrace the intricate scientific and laboratory tests he made on the boys, and at every step he demanded to be shown how, when and where such tests showed Babe and Dickey to be anything but sane, healthy individuals.

His many friends in this city will be pleased to know that his condition is favorable.

CHAPTER XXIV

But, somehow, to the older sister's hungry heart these glimpses had all been unsatisfactory. It was not that Dora and Craig did not include her loyally in their lives; not that they did not truly love her. But there was something lacking; or perhaps there was nothing lacking, perhaps that was it; perhaps it was all too easy, too rich and elaborate and flowing; Hilary, thinking of these things as the luxuriously warmed car swept her toward the city, smiled in wondering whether she was contrary enough to enjoy a little friction, to like the privations that emphasized the pleasures of life.

She looked out at the shabby villages, the bare trees, the frozen roads. Impossible to imagine all this clothed with gracious leaf and blossom; the air balmy, the skies only too mercifully blue! Every ugly little backyard, every disgusting box and bit of broken fence, every torn theatrical poster and patched roof, was glaringly evident today in a cold flood of sunlight.

Hilary had been doing an active share of village charity work in these more than two lonely years. She looked at babies now with eyes that estimated their probable chances of proper nutrition, and at humble neighborhoods in terms of domestic thrift.

"That place—they could probably buy it for twenty-two hundred," she mused, interestedly. "They can't pay more than twelve dollars' rent—they could buy it for eighteen hundred, I daresay. Why won't they save, and invest in homes, now that wages are so high? And then we could beautify—with green fences and brick lanes—instead of all this shiftless moving about and letting things get so horribly run down! Now, that woman there—and that delicious new baby getting a sore nose in this icy air—and she'll probably say that all her children's noses always run all winter—"

She recalled herself with a laugh. These things did not concern her at the moment. She had six weeks' leave of absence, in the dullest season at the factory, and she was going to see her mother. Craig had added an imperative appendix to Dora's letter; she must come. "Butterfly hasn't been very well," he had written, "and I think you'll be the best tonic in the world for her!"

Not very well, Hilary smiled wisely. For more than a year

she had been hoping that Dora might complain of being "not very well." It was needed to complete their felicity; the delight and the responsibility of parenthood. And it would anchor Dora, Hilary said simply to Craig, months ago, when something like faint hopes of the great event had been disappointed.

Just why Dora should need an anchor neither she nor Craig discussed. But it was perfectly evident that the twenty-year-old wife would be the happier for the new care. Hilary prayed, with her blue eyes upon the passing snow-covered flats outside of Hollywood, that this was the real reason for her summons now.

The young Spauldings had never lived in Mount Holly, as had been their plan when first they were engaged. Just before the quiet wedding old Rodney Spaulding's lameness had taken a new turn, and it seemed best that he should try a treatment abroad. So the senior Spauldings had followed the bride and groom to Europe, meeting them in England, in Italy, in Monte Carlo, and before Christmas Craig had come back to assume the management of the exporting offices, in New York, and had taken possession of his father's handsome home in Madison Avenue.

Twice in the two years his mother had come flying to America for brief visits, but Rodney Spaulding was well and comfortable in a Paris apartment, and she was unwilling to risk moving him away from the physician who seemed to understand his case so well. So Butterfly remained mistress of the old home, and it was to this home that Butterfly's big motor-car was bringing Hilary this afternoon.

It was five o'clock, and cold twilight in the city, when she went up the carefully scoured brownstone steps, and into the big warm hallway. Butterfly came with a rush to meet her.

"Oh, you darling!" the little hostess cried, delightedly. "Did you understand why I couldn't go? I've had such a wretched cold, and there was that horrid rehearsal! I've been dancing myself dead," added Butterfly, leading Hilary into the big sitting room behind the long drawing room, where several young men and women were congregated about an enormous open fireplace.

"You know these people, Hilary—Rose West, and Katrina Clarke, and Jim Clarke, and Cy Dwyer? Sit down, dearest—"

"Tess of the Storm Country" opened last night at the tent theatre of Murphy's Comedians to a large and appreciative audience. This popular play, always a record breaker, is splendidly handled by the present company and will undoubtedly be seen by thousands. In the audience last night were many people from out of the city, who had come from Hollywood, Pasadena, Los Angeles and other points.

The theatre where Murphy's Comedians are offering this play is located in Casa Verdugo, at the corner of Central avenue and Stocker street, just three minutes' ride north of the Glendale business section. The curtain rises each night promptly at 8 o'clock, states J. A. Menard, manager, though those who desire to select their seats may come as early as 7:15 o'clock.

She put Hilary into the immense davenport before the blaze; Hilary smiled confusedly at all the friendly faces. Most of the women were furred, they were smoking cigarettes and looked at her from under dashing hats.

"And me..." said a dark young man who was lounging with an elbow against the mantel. "Oh—Mr. Cecil Atherton." But Hilary introduced, with a negligent glance toward him of amusement and apology. She pronounced it "Sizzle." She sat down, leaning forward with her elbows almost on her knees, and accurately and firmly applied a perfumed little stick of lip-red, in an exquisite cloisonne tube, to her full lips.

"Does any one want more cocktails?" she asked, looking about. "No, thank you, Banks, no more!" she added, carelessly, to the butler. "Do you see our fireplace, Hilary. Isn't it adorable? We had it done while we were in Newport this summer!"

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MARSHMALLOWS

"Nurse Jane, will you please let me have twenty-five cents?" politely asked Uncle Wiggily of his muskrat lady housekeeper one day while they were still visiting at the seashore.

"What are you going to do with all that money?" inquired Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy with a smile.

"Oh, I am going to buy candy!" answered the bunny, indifferent like and unexpectedly bold.

"Candy?" cried Nurse Jane. "The idea, Wiggily! Are you growing childish since we came to the shore?"

"Well, the candy I am going to buy is for some children," said the bunny, as he twiddled his whiskers. "I don't much care for marshmallows myself. But I promised Jackie and Peetle Bow Wow those two puppy dog boys who are down for a week, that I would help them roast marshmallow candies at a beach fire. I let you keep all the money, you know, and if you will let me have twenty-five cents I'll get the marshmallows."

"Oh, if it's for the doggie boys—all right!" laughed Nurse Jane, and taking a quarter from her pocket, she gave it to Uncle Wiggily—I mean she gave him the quarter—not her pocket.

The rabbit gentleman went hipity hop to the lollypop shop and bought some marshmallow candies. I suppose you know what they are, but in case you don't, marshmallows are a soft, sticky white candy, very sweet, and they are just wonderful when roasted over a fire on the end of a sharp stick.

Wearing his tall, black silk hat, Uncle Wiggily hopped with the sticky marshmallow candies down the beach where Jackie and Peetle Bow Wow had made a fire out of drift wood.

"Hello, doggie boys!" cried the bunny uncle.

"Hello!" barked Jackie and Peetle. "Did you bring the candy?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Longears, and he opened the box. Taking out some of the marshmallows he stuck them on pointed sticks which Jackie and Peetle had found on the beach, and soon they were roasting the candies over the blaze.

All of a sudden, just when the marshmallows were nicely browning, up out of the ocean popped a sea lion.

"Gurra! Gurra! Gurra!" gargled the sea lion. "I haven't caught any rabbits in a week, but I'm going to get one now!" and he flipped and he flopped straight at Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, you're going to get me, are you?" bravely cried the bunny. "Well, I'll see about that!" Uncle Wiggily quickly took some of the soft, sticky marshmallow candies out of the box, and stuffed them in his tall silk hat.

Then, all of a sudden, he clapped the hat, full of marshmallows, on the head of the sea lion, pulling it down hard over the eyes and nose of the bad chap.

"Now let's see you get me!" laughed the bunny as the sea lion flopped around on the beach. He tried to pull the hat, filled with sticky marshmallows off his head, but he couldn't.

"Gurra! Gurra! Gurra!" gargled the sea lion and he flipped and flopped himself back into the ocean, hat, marshmallows and all.

"Oh, he's taken your hat!" barked Jackie.

Farming Implement Houses Report Sales

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 11.—Kansas City wholesalers report a further development in trade as a result of increased grain prices. This trend has made the volume of business for July higher than that of a year ago. Implement houses are optimistic, one house reporting an increase in sales of 20 per cent for the last month, compared with last year. Plows, harrows and two row wheat lists are in demand.

The country retail trade shows a radical change. The demand for cheaper prices which has existed since last October, it was thought, might mean that only cheaper grades of goods could be sold. The majority of the merchants, however, declined to stock the cheaper goods, as, although they lost some volume of business for a time, they are now benefiting by a sharply increased demand for standard grades of merchandise.

St. Louis Shipments Of Hogs, Beef Higher

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 11.—Shipments from St. Louis last month, 465,480 barrels of flour, 8,497,000 pounds of hides, 146,949 hogs, 1,843,120 pounds of beef and 1,843,000 bushels of wheat. Shipments of hogs and beef showed increases over the corresponding period of last year, while shipments of hides and wheat decreased.

SOX START NEW RECORD BY SHUTTING OUT ELKS

Reiger Pitches Good Ball, Allowing Only Three Hits to Visitors, While Dorman and Orsatt Collect Home Runs

The Glendale White Sox started on a new record yesterday, cut short a week ago by the Navy Champs of San Diego, when the pale hose crew shut out the Monrovia-Arcadia Elks by a score of 8 to 0 at the San Fernando road park.

It was a game that pleased all the fans, even the large crowd that gathered at Glendale's baseball plant from Monrovia and Arcadia. Reiger, working at top notch, let the visitors down with three scratch hits, while the Sox gathered twelve bingles off Duffy, considered one of the leading pitchers in semi-pro ranks in Southern California.

Two Get Homers
To add interest to the situation, Orsatt and Dorman poled out homers, Orsatt sending the ball over where the right field used to be, in the second inning, and Dorman driving a terrific smash to the center field fence in the fifth inning, with one on.

Two snappy double plays by the White Sox showed the spectators the Navy champs had not taken all the heart out of the local team. In the fifth, Hirigoyen to Sawyer to Shellenbach was the way it happened, and in the eighth it was Sawyer to Hirigoyen to Shellenbach.

The pale hose crew found that stealing bases was a dangerous proposition, Hirigoyen, Dorman and Orsatt getting caught, while Young and Sawyer were the only ones to get away with it. Corpe pilfered the only stolen base the visitors got.

One Reaches Third
Only one player on the visiting team reached third base during the game. This was Duffy, in the third inning. Duffy got on first when Shellenbach went back to field his grounder and no one covered first. He took second on Reiger's only wild throw and was sacrificed to third by Springer's drive to Shields.

Two Elks
Reached second base, Springer in the first and Corpe in the second, and Corpe had to steal to get it. Outside of these instances, Elks runners on bases were scarce.

Young had a field day all to himself. Although he didn't get the home run the fans were clamoring for, "Cy" pounded out three singles, got a fielder's choice, was walked once, scored three runs, had only two chances in left field and handled them without a miscue.

Dorman, playing his last game with the White Sox before reporting to the Vernon Tigers tomorrow, got three hits, a single, a double and a home run. He filed out to Peters once and was walked the last time he came to bat. He crashed the plate twice and drove in two runs. Two chances were all he got in center and he fielded 1,000. His drive to the center field fence in the fifth was one of the longest hits inside the park.

His double in the seventh rolled to the left field fence.

Orsatt Gets Homer
Orsatt's homer in the second came with no one on. Frenchy got under a fast one and lifted it over the place where the right field fence was. The ball cleared the line of automobiles parked at the edge of the field. He got a single in the fourth, a sacrifice in the sixth and filed out to Davidson in the seventh. Sawyer added two scores to the pale hose count. He hit a double in the first, fouled out in the third, was walked in the sixth and stole second, took third on Orsatt's sacrifice and scored on a wild pitch, and in the seventh he came in from first on Shellenbach's single, beating the throw home.

Reiger had a big edge on his former Texas league opponent, Duffy. Reiger fanned four and walked only one. Duffy fanned three and walked four. Reiger allowed only three hits, Corpe getting a bingle in the first and again in the seventh, and Duffy getting the third in the eighth.

RENAULT TO MEET MADDEN TONIGHT

Flynn Sends Out Plenty Of Superstitious Stuff; Firpo Banqueting

By FAIR PLAY
Special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924
NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Leo Flynn seems to think that all he has to do when one of his men is to do battle is to scare the opponent before he gets into the ring. Therefore, all his fighter has to do is to move his arms and the battle is won. He pulled superstitious stuff on George Godfrey and sent forth roams of stuff showing why and how Bartley Madden will be lucky if he remains awake more than a round or two in the ring with Jack Renault tonight.

Alarming reports come from Saratoga, where Firpo is preparing for his battle with Harry Wills. The Wild Bull wants his fodder frequently and in plentiful quantities. He has no idea of the virtues of dieting and inclines to those rich viands that titillate the palate and add huge rolls of embonpoint to the mid section.

Firpo is surrounded by a band of yes-men, according to all accounts and refuses to tolerate the presence of men like DeForest who would prescribe food for him and make him stick to it.

Due for Collapse
Tex Rickard built up Firpo very carefully and with a lot of skill. It looks now as though the promoter were prepared to let him fall with equal suddenness.

Firpo has not been an easy man to handle and, since the coming encounter on Boyles Thirty Acres promises—from the sale of tickets thus far—to be a clean-up, this time seems as good as any to let Firpo pass out of the picture.

Of course he may club Wills into submission but what is going to happen to him if Wills gets to him first with one of those stomach-piledrivers is plenty.

Could Be King
The sad part of it is, from Firpo's standpoint, that a good trainer and a skilled coach could take Luis in hand and probably make of him the most formidable fighter that ever stood in a ring.

Of course, it is good for our heavyweight prestige that Firpo is an Argentinian instead of a Finn. What those Finnish trainers would make of Luis may be left to the imagination.

There is a negro middleweight hailing from Providence named Jack Green who will bear watching. The writer saw him stow Vic Clifford away the other night with the shortest sort of a right hand hook. The blow did not travel more than six inches. That is championship hitting.

Green battles with Bobby Michaels in Jersey tonight and Bobby sure wants to watch out.

McDonald Stingy With Hits at Lankershim
McDonald, pitching ace for the Lankershim ball club, hurled a no-hit contest yesterday against the San Fernando aggregation at Lankershim, but four walks, coupled with some loose fielding on the part of his teammates allowed the San Fernando team to get two runs. C. Cruz and Heider held the Lankershim team to four hits, which they converted into seven runs. The result of yesterday's game leaves the two cities tied and the deciding game will be played next Sunday.

SPORT WISDOM
By WALTER CAMP
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Yale and Dartmouth students, attracted by opportunity for summer work, have been laboring on the new eighteen-hole golf course at New Haven, which was made possible for Yale through the generosity of the widow of the late Ray Tompkins.

The tract upon which the course is located is some rock ledge, and it is here that the Yale and Dartmouth undergraduates, some forty-three of them, have been working under the direction of the contractors. Yale golfers this fall will be glad to see the sight of what already begins to look like a real golf course.

It seems tough luck that the star quarterback of Carnegie Tech., Robertson, should have been turned down by the West Point authorities, because of color blindness, after passing all other requirements. Evidently all opponents look alike to this stellar performer, whether blue, red or yellow on their stockings.

Golf instructors will tell you not to "slug" at the ball. But the only penalty they predict for failure to heed their warning is a topped or missed shot. But Bert Smith, out in Aurora, Ill., suffered much more severely, for, upon making a mighty swipe at the ball, he fell and broke his leg in two places.

Everyone will be glad to learn that Herb Kopf, champion of the W. J. eleven, has fully recovered from the injury received at Detroit last year and will lead his team this season, fit and well.

The Senators downed the White Sox in a pitching duel, 4 to 2.

La Follette Reveals Opposition to Klan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, independent candidate for the presidency, has announced that he was opposed to the Ku Klux Klan. The announcement was made in a letter to Robert P. Scripps of New York city, who has inquired as to La Follette's attitude.

"Anyone familiar with my record, especially in my own state, knows that I have always stood without reservation against any discrimination between races, classes and creeds," La Follette said.

"I hold that every citizen is entitled to the full exercise of his constitutional rights. I am unalterably opposed to the secret organization known as the Ku Klux Klan as disclosed by its public acts. It cannot long survive."

Fish Spotters Bring Chinese Junk Ashore

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 11.—Tom Wade and Charles Peterson, in charge of the Seal Beach and Newport airports, have made the record catch of the season.

While spotting fish schools for San Pedro fishermen, they espied what they thought to be a whale about six miles offshore.

Swooping down toward the water they learned it was an over-turned craft. Getting a line on the boat, they hauled it ashore where a crowd had collected.

With a lurch in the breakers, seeming as though something heavy fell out of the boat, it turned right side up and revealed itself to be a Chinese junk.

Hudson, Essex Output Shows Big Increase

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—The July output of Hudson and Essex cars totaled 13,205, as against 10,625 in July, 1923. Since January 1, the company has produced 10,000 more Essex cars than in the corresponding period last year, the output being over 52,000, as against 41,999 last year.

TARIFF IS VITAL CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Commission Is Split Along
Party Lines; Coolidge
Welcomes Fight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Events in the past few days in Washington have dashed the hopes of American business men that the tariff ever can be taken out of politics. It is once more a political football and promises to continue so to the end.

The Republicans in the last Congress wrote the so-called "flexible" provisions in the Fordney-McCumber tariff act, with the idea of giving a "scientific" flavor to the various imposts. The president was authorized to lower or raise the existing rates as much as 50 per cent, if advisable, in order to equalize any change in the cost of production of protected articles at home and abroad.

This action was to be predicated upon a finding of the tariff commission, composed of six members. The tariff commission was supposed to be a fact finding body without political prejudice of any sort, but composed nevertheless of members of the two old parties.

Commission Splits

The actual working of the law, especially with reference to the sugar schedule which is now a storm center, has proved to be anything but "scientific." The tariff commission has split along partisan lines. It has differed on what figures should be obtained, how they should be obtained, and what they would represent after being obtained. The "scientific" discussions within the commission are said to have stopped just short of Marquis of Queensberry rules. The chairman of the commission, Mr. Marvin, and the vice chairman, Mr. Culbertson, have been particularly at outs. The relations have been those of two bulldogs meeting as perfect strangers. It was not surprising, therefore, that two totally opposite reports were submitted to the president. Nor will it be surprising if the president, fully informed of the manner in which the sugar investigation was conducted and the reports arrived at, either sends them back to the commission or discards them altogether and bases his ultimate conclusions on personal inquiries, made with the help of treasury and department of commerce officials.

Coolidge's Policy

President Coolidge has let it be known again at this time that he is firmly committed to the policy of a sufficiently protective tariff. He also has let it be known that he is a man whose political views do not change with the shifting winds and therefore his tariff ideas are not in for any sort of reformation during the coming campaign, or in the next administration, should he be elected.

Mr. Coolidge, in maintaining the high tariff principle, feels he is amply supported by the party platform adopted at Cleveland.

The president regards the tariff as an inevitable issue of the campaign, and is said to welcome it. Senator La Follette has chosen to deliver the first blow at the tariff and has promised to keep the hot issue burning at the Republican defenses from now until election day. Although efforts have been made to show the progressive candidate that the sugar tariff was essentially a farmer tariff, designed to protect the American growers of cane and sugar beets against the competition of cheaper labor in Cuba, Senator La Follette says he will not let up, but will fight the sugar schedule to a finish.

Ample Revenues

Mr. Davis' elucidation of his own tariff views and his interpretation of the party platform adopted at Madison Square Garden, are awaited with unusual interest. In an address to his fellow West Virginians at the time they first endorsed him for the presidency, Mr. Davis stated that he believed in a competitive tariff, which should also produce "ample revenues" for the government. The party platform also calls for a tariff which would permit America competition with the other countries of the world. The phrase "competitive tariff" has been growing in favor in Democratic circles during the past few years.

But how to make a tariff "competitive" or "flexible" when a supposedly "scientific" commission divides itself sharply along political lines and resorts to political reasoning and arguments, is the problem which confronts the law makers.

Sugar Is Problem

It was easy enough for the commission to agree upon a higher duty on wheat at a time when comparatively little wheat was coming into America and the grain elevators of this country were filled to overflowing. No American interest was affected by the change. Neither was the price of wheat. But with sugar it is different. Most of the sugar consumed in this country is imported in the raw state from Cuba and refined along the Atlantic coast. The refiners have millions of dollars invested and are behind the move to lower the import rates on raw sugar. The cane growers and beet farmers say they would be wiped out if proper protection is removed. Sugar is the one great commodity which it is claimed could be raised at home but isn't. The interests on both sides of the question are extensive and hence the sugar schedule always has been one of the most controversial in a tariff measure.

President Coolidge has no easy task on his hands, but it is expected the farmers and the farm organization will flock to his support. Fortunately for the president, and the tariff advocates, the price of sugar is lower than it has

MOROSCO, BROKE, PLANS COMEBACK

Theatrical Producer Seeks To Rebuild Shattered
Fortunes on Stage

By HARVEY ANDERSON
Special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—In a modest little apartment in upper Broadway, Oliver Morosco, once great Broadway theatrical producer, is turning flip flops by the hour, preparing himself for a Broadway "comeback" in a play in which he is to be the acrobatic hero, a play that is reminiscent of the days of his youth, when he tumbled for circus audiences.

Morosco is dead broke. The man who produced "The Bird of Paradise," which grossed $4,000,000 and brought Lenore Ulrich to Broadway; who discovered J. Hartley Manners as a playwright and gave Laurette Taylor her chance in "Peg o' My Heart," at an expense of more than $3,500,000, is without a nickel he can call his own.

A little more than three years ago he was known as a Broadway genius—not a business marvel, but a creative genius whose very creativeness brought his money easily, where others struggled to make ends meet. He possessed a fortune of $5,000,000 and had an income of $500,000 a year. He owned a small town near Los Angeles that he called Moroscotown. He produced pictures and he owned the rights to a number of successful plays. He first produced "The Irish Rose" in Los Angeles, but financial difficulties took it from his hands. It now is on the road to a $5,000,000 profit to its author, Ann Nichols, who took over its production.

Wife Has Revenge

Morosco dreamed of a chain of theatres from coast to coast, with his name above them in electric lights. But, as success grew upon him, as money rolled in, he discarded the dream of the younger and harder days, and fell in love with an actress in one of his shows. His wife charged that he lavished money on the other woman and divorced him.

She had her revenge. She tied up his money by attachments so that he was unable to operate without outside help. It was the first time in his theatrical career that he had been bothered for money.

Along in April, 1921, he formed the Morosco Holding company and announced that he would "turn over all its interests to a Wall Street group," so that he might devote himself to working out his national program.

The climax of the move came this week when seven men were indicted for milking Morosco of $5,000,000 and the public of $2,500,000. "Slack talkers," the government calls them in its arraignment.

Pressure Work

They persuaded Morosco to form the company, the government claims, turning over to them all of his assets and all of his cash. In return, they gave him crisp new stock certificates of the Morosco Holding company. He sold these at $100 a unit, which consisted of four shares of common stock and one of preferred. A high powered sales organization was perfected. Into it the government claim, were pressed some of the high tension salesmen who used the title of "glass casket" fraud and misled the public of millions.

The units sold to the public for from $160 to $300. Morosco was given enough money to meet his needs. He did not worry about the bookkeeping. When he asked for payment at $90 a unit, the Morosco Holding company replied, "We are paying it out to your former wife, under her attachment, to prevent her from throwing you into bankruptcy."

It was all right with Morosco. He was having his dreams and his happiness with his new wife, who was Thelma Paley. Meanwhile, the country had been blanketed with the Morosco Holding company stock. A man in Titusville, Pa., subscribed to $200,000 under the representation, he claimed, that a theatre bearing his name would be erected in Titusville. August Janssen, the restaurant owner of New York, who had an ambition to be a playwright, put $400,000 in the venture. Others, confident of Morosco's genius, put smaller sums in.

Pay Two Dividends

The company paid two dividends of 8 per cent. The government claims this money was paid out of the sale of the stock and not out of earnings. The government claims also that stock was sold on misrepresentation as to profits.

When Morosco heard of these representations, he protested. When protests did not avail, he resigned. Then the company was thrown into receivership. Morosco was left without a penny, without a contract giving him rights in any plays, without even a frayed costume from one of his earlier successes.

So Morosco turns flip flops in the living room of his little apartment and hopes that his coming show may be another "Peg o' My Heart" or "Bird of Paradise."

PREDICT BANNER YEAR FOR RADIO

Politics and Farm Products
Price Raise Factors
In New Business

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Recent reports from the principal radio manufacturers and distributors would seem to indicate a certainty that the wireless industry will have the largest year in its history. The only question seems to be how big sales will be. Estimates based on seven months' production range between $350,000,000 and $500,000,000, including parts, sets and batteries and other accessories.

Circumstances have combined to increase interest in radio. The growing intensity of the interest in the presidential campaign, in which radio is expected to play a major part, has led to heavy purchases of new sets. The spurt in prices of agricultural products has focused attention on the daily market reports, especially in the rural districts. Sport already has played a big part, notably with the Olympic games, and promises to be even more a factor in view of the approach of the international polo and tennis matches.

Gives Real Service

Combined with these influences has been the real satisfaction which recent equipment has given its users and the development of enthusiasts capable and desirous of manufacturing their own sets and conducting independent experiments.

Profits and production among the manufacturers and dealers, therefore, are piling up. Some idea of the volume of sales may be gathered from the fact that the first quarter of this year the sales value of neodymium receivers, paying a royalty to the Hazeltine corporation, amounted to $7,600,000, and that the second quarter undoubtedly will show a profit over the first quarter. Even at the lower rates this would mean annual profits of something like $800,000 for the corporation.

Show Huge Gains

The Radio Corporation of America, large manufacturers of radio equipment, in addition to its radio activities, had a net income in 1923 of $4,737,773.76, a gain of $1,713,319.99 over the previous year. This year the company has had extreme difficulty in filling orders for neodymium sets and sales have increased until now they are believed to be at a rate well over $5,000,000 a month. Sales of tubes are running above $1,400,000 a month, it is estimated. These tubes are being made by the big electronic manufacturing companies, such as General Electric and Westinghouse, and their profits from radio have increased in proportion.

The Dubilier Condenser and Radio company has profited not alone through its manufacture of radio equipment, but by the order of the Interstate Commerce commission to install automatic control train signals. The Dubilier has been awarded large contracts by train control manufacturers for various sized condensers. The invention controlled by the company used in the manufacture of so-called "super duoden" prodova has been an important part of the company's assets. The products are expected to obviate the use of "B" batteries by converting the power from any lamp socket into voltage used in any radio receiver.

Doubles Capacity

The Ware Radio Corporation has recently doubled the capacity of its factory and expects to turn out $5,500,000 worth of popular priced neodymium sets in the year beginning September 1. The company has been called upon to supply 22,000 of these sets for one phonograph company alone to equip cabinets which combine radio and phonograph equipment.

An idea of the growth of the retail business in radio can be gained by the business of the Royal Corporation, which began with a capital investment of $7,500 in one store and developed without the introduction of additional outside capital into a concern with 11 branches in three cities.

David Sarnoff, vice president and general manager of the Radio Corporation of America, predicts that ten million radio receivers will be in operation in the United States in five years and that two-thirds of all the homes wired for electricity will be equipped with radio.

Tire Factories Plan For Larger Output

AKRON, Aug. 11.—Re-employment and increasing operations are the feature of the tire plant situation here. Original equipment business is picking up, indicating a fair sized production of automobile accessories during the remainder of the year.

ORGANIZE LEAGUE TO BEAT WRIGHT

Tujunga-Sunland Residents
To Oppose Re-election
Of Supervisor

TUJUNGA, Aug. 11.—As the result of an informal mass meeting last week of Tujunga-Sunland citizens, another meeting was called and held in the Garden of the Moon park where a "Better County Government League" was formed. Dr. Frederick Keeler was elected president and Willis S. Abbot, secretary. The league is anti-Wright in sentiment and opposes the re-election of Henry W. Wright to the office of county supervisor of the fifth district.

Speakers at the meeting voiced the opposition to Wright, which they declared is growing in the district which he was appointed to represent. A resolution setting forth the grievances of the Tujunga-Sunland section was adopted. The league plans a vigorous campaign against Wright at the coming election.

The organized opposition to Wright has grown out of the Tujunga-Sunland voters' dissatisfaction with his actions in a recent incorporation proceeding which united the two towns into a city of the sixth class. At that time, the league charges, Wright did not act to the best interests of the majority and exercised questionable rights of office. A lengthy report made by the league sets forth the grievance and asks all voters of the fifth district to join in the move to defeat Wright in the coming election.

Randall of Long Beach was driving a new car through this city. He decided to tarry a moment, but the car endeavored to carry on. As a result he went plunging through the Main Shoe hospital, tearing out windows and a brick wall.

About $75,000 has been spent in making the plant the most modern and scientific of its kind on the coast. Ten per cent increased acreage is reported, but saccharin content is reported low. The beets will bring the growers a million dollars from this one plant, it is estimated.

HIGH CROWNS AND PRICES ON HATS

New Fall Creations Appear
In Shops; Many Colors
To Choose From

By AILEEN LA MONT
Special correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Hats, hats, hats—hobbling up and down again. That represents to the feminine shopper today the same sort of nightmare the tramp of boots brought to Kipling's soldier. The hats for fall are of nearly every conceivable design, but they all have one property in common. They are high both in crown and in price.

One prevailing fashion at present is for felt hats, fine and supple in quality, dyed before they are blocked. These have large crowns and small brims and the name "chimble hat" accurately describes them. Beige, brown, warm reds, light green and a tone of orange yellow are favorite colors.

Another popular design is used for larger hats. These consist of two colors of felt, or straw and felt or silk and felt, or felt and fur. A hat with a black crown, for example, will have a white brim. A cyclamen crown will be surrounded by a navy blue brim.

Feathers Popular

Many of the high crowned small hats are adorned with a great chon of ostrich or vulture feathers at one side, or by flaring bows of wide ribbon similarly placed.

Particular attention is being given by designers to hats for bobbed heads. Velvet is the favorite material, and the hats are devoid of trimmings, the artist effect sought being attained by combining three or more color tones.

The straightness and narrowness of the fall silhouette is strongly emphasized at present by the use of tight satin sheaths under silk velvet for both daytime and evening fall frocks. A startling costume, just imported, consists of a white kasha dress with a plain bateau neckline and tight sleeves which is worn over a black satin sheath. The front of the dress does not meet, but is caught together at the waistline by frogs of the white material. The bottom of the white dress has a broad band of black glycerined ostrich and a row of black ostrich also terminate the sleeves.

Black and White

With this costume the skirt of which is very short, are worn white stockings and black pumps, while the effect is completed by an Indian turban of white velvet surmounted by a spray of white ostrich plumes.

Jean Patou, the noted French dressmaker, predicts that the softer men's materials will be utilized for tailored dresses and suits this fall. M. Patou also predicts the use of kasha for sport clothes, crepes and silk velvets for other frocks, and the glittering lames, brooches and embroideries for evening dresses.
